according to un estimates approximately nearly half of the world s population now lives in cities and that figure is expected to rise to almost 70 by 2050 cities now account for around 70 of worldwide greenhouse gas emissions and this percentage is predicted to rise in the near future as a result of projected increases in global urbanization patterns it is widely acknowledged that irrational urban planning and design can increase emissions while also exacerbating threats and risks resulting in a slew of environmental issues such as urban heat islands air pollution flooding amongst other issues as well as environmental social and economic losses therefore these concerns must be addressed promptly in order to cope up with these rising difficulties and make urban environments safer for residents with the advancement of remote sensing technology and the use of current remote observation systems urban data science remote sensing and artificial intelligence ai modeling and quantifying emergent difficulties in urban regions and urban systems have become easy they aid in the quantitative analysis of urban shape functions and human behavior in cities harvesting data developing models and suggesting new methodologies will be aided by combining urban ecology with new breakthroughs in data science this book is of great value to a diverse group of academicians scientists students environmentalists meteorologists urban planners remote sensing and gis experts with a common interest in geospatial sciences within the earth environmental sciences as well as human and social sciences what does it mean to be called how does one discern his or her calling there has been much discussion about these topics within the church and perhaps much confusion as well what if we could root the nature of the believer's calling and vocation from a missional perspective this book seeks to understand how a deeper understanding of god's mission can help believers discern the work to which they are called and equip them for missional witness in and through their work importantly rooting our understanding of vocation and calling in god's mission gives space for new emphases within the conversations related to faith and work including theologically and contextually grounded emphases on creativity vocational freedom and vocational discernment along with innovative educational models which can support believers as they navigate their work as participants in god's mission when believers connect their gifts talents and creativity with god's work in and for the world in a way that is contextually relevant it opens up opportunities for transformative witness for both believers and for the organizations they serve the journal of biblical and theological studies jbtst is an academic journal focused on the fields of bible and theology from an inter denominational point of view the journal is comprised of an editorial board of scholars that represent several academic institutions throughout the world jbtst is concerned with presenting high level original scholarship in an approachable way academic journals are often written by scholars for other scholars they are technical in nature assuming a robust knowledge of the field there are fewer journals that seek to introduce biblical and theological scholarship that is also accessible to students jbtst seeks to provide high level scholarship and research to both scholars and students which results in original scholarship that is readable and accessible as an inter denominational journal jbtst is broadly evangelical we accept contributions in all theological disciplines from any evangelical perspective in particular we encourage articles and book reviews within the fields of old testament new testament biblical theology church history systematic theology practical theology philosophical theology philosophy and ethics the sociology of mental health and illness explains sociology's key contributions to our understanding of mental health and serves as a strong counterpoint to the medical approach to the subject using both micro and macro level theories particularly social constructionism the text shows the subjective nature of mental illness and systems of diagnosis and treatment it also emphasizes how social conditions and relationships create life pathways toward mental health and psychological struggles and uses the concept of patient career to describe how individuals interact with mental health professionals in addition the text explores the connections between mental health and social problems such as terrorism substance abuse criminal violence suicide and domestic violence
