this book proposes the idea of fictional international relations (IR) and engages with feminist IR by contextualising the case of a woman spy in Korea in the cold war fictional imagination and feminist IR encourage one to go beyond conventional or standard ways of thinking it reshapes taken for granted interpretations and assumptions this takes the view that a dominant narrative of events might be reconstructed as a different kind of story once events are placed within a wider temporal approach the case of the woman Korean secret agent who reportedly bombed a South Korean plane Korean Airlines Kal flight 858 under the instruction from the North Korean leadership to disrupt the Seoul Olympic games is chosen to serve as an effective example of fictional IR and feminist IR scholarship which can be investigated through the research puzzles concerning gender pain and truth fictional international relations has three main objectives first it investigates the way in which fiction writing can become a method for dealing with data problems and contingency in it second the book examines how gender pain and truth operate or interact in the case of the Korean spy and how this observation can strengthen feminist it in terms of intersectionality finally the author goes on to explore why this case has been so difficult to study openly and thoroughly the aim of the book is not to refute the official findings the point is to unpack complex dynamics surrounding truth more specifically how the official account has been executed as the truth based on a feminist informed investigation this book will be of interest to students of it theory critical security studies cold war studies gender studies and Asian studies in the more than 3 000 years since its invention the Chinese script has been adapted many times to write languages other than Chinese including Korean Vietnamese Japanese and Zhuang in Sinography the borrowing and adaptation of the Chinese script Zev Handel provides a comprehensive analysis of how the structural features of these languages constrained and motivated methods of script adaptation this comparative study reveals the universal principles at work in the borrowing of logographic scripts by analyzing and explaining these principles Handel advances our understanding of how early writing systems have functioned and spread providing a new framework that can be applied to the history of scripts beyond East Asia such as Sumerian and Akkadian cuneiform fifty years after the Korean conflict what is a forgotten war for some Americans is an aching memory for China with over a million casualties out of the three million soldiers sent into battle that war looms as large for the People's Republic of China PRC barely a year old when North Korea invaded the South as World War II does for most other countries it was the first international war fought by the Chinese Communist regime to halt counterrevolution it was also a war that the Chinese fully expected to win by virtue of not only superiority of numbers but also their soldiers superior political quality this book presents a mosaic of memoirs by key Chinese military commanders from that war drawing not only on their personal papers but also on still classified archives and on Chinese language sources unavailable in English it offers an uncensored behind the scenes story of the Communist campaign from the decision to intervene through the truce negotiations that discloses new information on such facets of the war as strategy and tactics use of propaganda and mobilization of the Chinese population it also reveals the general's concerns about the possible use of nuclear force and the alleged use of biological and chemical weapons by the united states the book contains a wealth of new materials on the chinese intervention including combat operations logistics political control field command and communications among those whose recollections are recorded then acting chief of staff nie rongzhen reveals how party leadership decided on intervention commander in chief peng dehuai provides personal accounts of major battles and communications with mao and general yang dezhi shares secrets of chinese military strategy and tactics discussing how the army orchestrated each battle to contend with the better equipped un forces the volume also features an updated short history of the prc s conduct of the war based on chinese sources plus rare photos from chinese archives that put readers behind the lines from the chinese side mao s generals remember korea demonstrates that the prc continues to draw military diplomatic and strategic lessons from the war it fought fifty years ago with the world s most powerful military force it offers valuable insight into the chinese way of war and the military mind of mao that will be a rich resource for asian and military scholars
