as the first exporter of cultural goods and services the united states has long held that such products should be treated like any other merchandise and be liberalized on the other hand for countries such as France and Canada who are concerned about the impact of economic globalization and the digital revolution on their cultural identity cultural products should be exempted from economic liberalization or subject to a cultural exception these conflicting views and interests between states as to the treatment of cultural products in international economic law lie at the heart of the trade and culture debate these differences have led to serious tensions over the liberalization of cultural services within the World Trade Organization as well as to a convention within UNESCO to recognize the economic and cultural character of cultural products and the states' right to pursue cultural policies with most states still not keen on liberalizing the cultural sector and the stalemate in the Doha Round the United States has turned to preferential trade agreements to secure its policy preferences on the treatment of cultural products since the beginning of the twenty-first century the US government has concluded eleven trade agreements grouping sixteen countries and has been involved in three sets of plurilateral negotiations with major implications for the evolution of the trade and culture debate

This edited collection explores the conjunction of multiculturalism and the self in literature and culture studies and brings together essays by prominent researchers interested in literature and culture whose critical perspectives inform discussions of specific examples of multicultural contexts in which individuals and communities strive to maintain their identities the book is divided into two major parts the first of which comprises literary representations of multiculturalism and discussions of its impasses and impacts in fictional circumstances in turn the second part primarily focuses on culture at large and real-life consequences taken together the two complementary parts offer an illuminating and well-rounded overview of representations of multiculturalism in literature and contemporary culture from a variety of critical perspectives

Youth media and culture in the Asia Pacific region presents an analysis of youth media activities in a diverse but geographically connected Asia Pacific region the region which is spatially connected by its colonial and imperial past is becoming a significant player in the globalized world in this context youth situated in these economically politically and socially structured communities are redefining their locales through their patterns of media use the discourse of 'youth' in this disparate region is manifest in the media through their identity articulations and social activism the book illustrates that these 'youth subcultures' in the Asia acific are part of the well marketed global consumerism culture and yet at other times independent of the commodifying impetus of global capital it draws on case studies to examine some of the media practices youth in the region are engaged in and elucidates the process of social change taking place in some asia pacific nations this book contributes to the important and growing field of youth media studies the regionalization of media research is necessarily recuperated here bringing large populations of media users into a frame of reference that allows critical reflection on the new waves of use and sociality in the asia pacific region stephanie hemelryk donald professor of international studies uts
