this book analyzes a rich and diverse body of philosophical and theological literature concerning the import of narrative for the understanding of morality nelson begins by examining the theses that to understand oneself a tradition and history as a whole they must be understood in the context of a narrative recent philosophical writings on the relation of narrative to the moral concepts of social groups and individuals including alasdair macintyre's proposal for the rehabilitation of an ethic of virtue shaped by narrative are explored issues discussed include the freedom of moral agents in relation to their narratives the relation between narrative and universal moral rules and the problem of relativism next nelson classifies theological uses of narrative as belonging to either a liberal universalistic or postliberal particularistic tradition and considers the implications of construing scripture as narrative for the problematic relation between scripture and ethics the work of stanley hauerwas the foremost narrativist in christian ethics is analyzed at length nelson argues that while narrative is a necessary focus it does not exhaust the methodological agenda narrative is not as its advocates sometimes suggest a universal solvent
