the 2011 war in syria triggered a wave of people seeking asylum in europe bringing immigration into the political and media spotlight and sparking numerous debates on displaced people these debates

have been marked by a heightened focus on the terminology used to describe people on the move terms such as refugee migrant immigrant asylum seeker illegal immigrant and displaced person have circulated in the media often blurring our understanding of events or conveying contradictory representations of those involved moreover the words used to define people on the move are not fixed in time their meaning and reference emerge from events and social representations shaping both the public issue of migration and the image of the social actors concerned using a discursive approach that combines discourse analysis and corpus linguistics this book examines how the belgian media referred to displaced people it is innovative in three key ways firstly it analyses media coverage in both the french and dutch speaking communities of belgium allowing for comparisons of how migration was represented in two culturally linguistically and politically distinct regions of the same country secondly it studies both written and audiovisual media drawing on an extensive dataset of 13 391 press articles and 3 490 television news items finally it goes beyond the most commonly used terms related to migration exploring a significantly broader range of designations than have previously been studied this book contributes to the understanding of how language shapes social debates and is an essential resource for anyone interested in the multilingual analysis of media texts
