over the last two decades singapore has undergone a substantial degree of asianization apart from participating in the asian values debate of the 1990s re-visioning itself as new asia and a global asian hub and establishing asian identities for the commodities it consumes and produces singapore has also repurposed its modernity cultures and ethos along similar regionalist precepts however even in recent times singapore continues to vacillate ambivalently between identifying with and differentiating itself from asia responding to the challenges singapore faces in coming to terms with its asian identity this book examines the complex cultural social and political underpinnings that have shaped singapore's mainstream discourse on asia indeed it argues that its legacy as a colonial port city the exigencies of managing the post independence nation state and the larger forces of imperialism and capitalism all contribute to its politics of asianism taking a thoroughly interdisciplinary approach that spans history cultural studies postcolonialism and cultural geography leong yew reveals how asia has been used to narrate singapore's beginnings revalidate singaporean ethnic culture and to consolidate its practices of consumption and commodification this book will be welcomed by students and scholars working across a range of fields including asian culture and society asian politics cultural theory and postcolonial studies this book presents an interdisciplinary study that straddles four academic fields namely autobiography stylistics narratology and translation studies it shows that foregrounding is manifested in the language of autobiography alerting readers to an authorial tone with certain ideological affiliations in refuting the presumed conflation between the author narrator and character in autobiography the study emphasizes readers role in constructing an implied author the issues of implied translator assumed translation and rewriting are explored through a comparative analysis of the english and chinese autobiographies by singapore's founding father lee kuan yew the analysis identifies different foregrounding practices and attributes these differences to an implied translator further evidence derived from narrative communicative situations in the two autobiographies underscores divergent personae of the implied authors the study aims to establish a deeper understanding of how translation and rewriting have a far reaching impact on the self and world making functions of autobiography this book will be of special interest to scholars and students of linguistics literature translation and political science
