this volume contains 4 papers focusing on terracotta figurines of the ancient near east that were delivered at one of three sessions of the annual meeting of the american schools of oriental research in 2009 2010 and 2011

this volume describes and illustrates the ceramic figurines excavated at the maya site of tikal guatemala from 1956 through 1969 the collection includes both hand modeled and mold made figures human and animal as well as related ceramic objects including figurine molds flutes and panpipes the figurines are classified by subject matter and the site distribution and dating discussed these figurines are the largest excavated collection of ceramic figurines from a maya site and one of the major artifact categories from the site of tikal most of the classifiable pieces are illustrated at a scale that allows comparison with similar objects from other maya sites the purpose of this volume is the presentation of the material from the site of tikal comparative material is limited an investigation into the functional and symbolic uses of shells during the pre conquest era in the occidente region of mexico the author first provides a classification list of known examples then proceeds to interpret those examples giving information on provenance find context date and function he concludes that the presence of shell artefacts in the region is the result of a deliberate selection of that material since the species represented were of relatively little food value for functional symbolic purposes these 13 essays taken from papers given at a colloquium held at university college london in 1996 focus specifically on the iron age in israel and jordan sheds light upon the origins and significance of greek portraiture the northern andes is a pivotal region for understanding many of the social economic political and ideological changes that pre columbian cultures experienced topics inc recent investigations on human colonisation of the region origins of sedentism and food production rise of chiefdoms and importance of symbolism and iconography this work examines the post palatial phase of late helladic iiic middle during this phase in greek prehistory greece undergoes important changes that will transfer the palace administrative system of the mycenaean era to that of the city states of the early greek period at the time of its publication much of the material evidence known today was still unpublished and although the material examined provided a most thorough account of what was known at the time it was still limited as a result of the lack of publications or as often was the case the lack of literary or so defined deposits this phase of the bronze age has been periodically examined either through the investigation of specific sites or in certain cases with the study of a particular type of material find such as pottery what this publication aims to provide is a more synthetic study of the middle phase in its entirety within the regions of the central and southern aegean by examining the archaeological material from settlements and burials of the middle phase together with their associated finds of pottery terracotta figurines jewellery and weapons it is hoped that they will provide valuable insight into this phase and provide information concerning the new social and economic structures that arose in response to the loss of the mycenaean administrative centres
