Church musicians' compensation obfuscates many religious people. One commentator of a nationally syndicated religious radio program stated that from all the religious questions, none is as controversial as should church musicians should be paid. Darrell Alexander resolves the answer through fundamental Bible texts. If you are a church musician, minister of music, soloist, instrumentalist, choir member, church member, trustee, finance committee member, music workshop organizer, teacher, music workshop presenter, praise team member, interested in becoming a church musician, choir president, organist, pianist, choir director, chorister, church board member, deaconess, pastor, asst. pastor, deacon, professor, a bishop, a priest, a member of the leadership system for your congregation, denomination, and/or any religious organization, students of theology, music, worship, and praise, sacred music, or just have a curiosity about whether church musicians should be compensated, then this book is a must read for you. Darrell Alexander, the author, discusses the foundations of the creation of the world, Lucifer, and the war in heaven, the Levites' tithes and offerings, and ways to bridge the gap between ministers, musicians, choir members, administrations, and leadership systems of churches and religious denominations. How do we differentiate between who is compensated in the church or not compensated? The author prays that excellence in worship should church musicians be paid helps to transform any assumptions of ideations, paradigms, and traditions within churches and denominations and their leaders and members concerning the subject so that we all may continue to strive for excellence in worship to God every church and its members and officials should have a copy in their library. Excellence in worship should church musicians be paid is straight talk concerning music, excellence in worship, tithes, offerings, and the church.

The sounds of our offerings is good news about the music of the church. It recounts what has been learned from studying nine congregations where music promotes the full, active, conscious participation of the worshipers and where it has done so consistently and coherently for many years. Pastors and musicians reflect on their work together and offer rich insights about what works and what does not. Lay musicians and members of the congregation also share their experiences with music in worship. Though no site was without its struggles, and at times difficult choices had to be made, for the most part we see unremarkable week to week, year to year faithful rendering of music for prayer and praise. We see that sometimes the nature of the music took a slightly different turn, one that built upon the foundations of the past. The music choices in these churches are not restricted to one particular era or style but rather reflect the broader church's music repertoire, including the best recently written music. These are the stories of churches with a reputation for their fine music programs, churches that with their leaders and congregations have worked out these programs in consistent, coherent ways. In most cases, the programs span multiple priests, pastors, and musicians. The sounds of our offerings is about excellent music and how it has found its way into the life and faith practices of these congregations.
