all over the world families and communities are key providers of care and support this is particularly true in relation to serious illnesses such as hiv and aids yet families and communities can also stigmatize their members leaving people to die in the most appalling conditions this book looks at the diversity of family and community responses to hiv and aids by examining contexts as diverse as nuclear extended and refugee family households and gay community networks and structures it offers important insight into the factors which lead to positive responses and those which trigger negative ones this salient text presents a culturally aware public health approach to the hiv epidemic in malaysia a country emblematic of the muslim world s response to the crisis it explores complex interactions of religion with health as a source of coping as well as stigma and denial particularly as islam plays a central role in malaysian culture politics and policy at the heart of the book a groundbreaking study analyzes attitudes and behaviors toward prevention among diverse people living with hiv faith leaders and government health officials from these findings readers gain insight into how health professionals policymakers and organizations can create appropriate prevention programs in malaysia with implications for other muslim countries this timely volume situates malaysia and the asian pacific region in the context of the hiv epidemic analyzes ways islamic beliefs can shape perceptions of hiv and prevention policy reviews a unique study of stakeholder opinions and practices regarding hiv discusses the consequences of islamic rulings on sex outside marriage offers recommendations for effective hiv prevention practice and policy islam and health policies related to hiv prevention in malaysia is of immediate relevance to researchers studying hiv prevention social aspects of religion sexuality and sex education policymakers in health promotion and health education as well as graduate students in sex education sociology psychology and cultural studies should also find it useful coping with loss describes the many ways in which people cope with the death of someone they love most earlier books on bereavement have fallen into two categories distillations of the clinical experience of individual therapists or collections of chapters reporting the results of empirical studies each category is valuable but has tended to serve a narrow group of readers practitioners with particular theoretical orientations or researchers in quest of the latest findings coauthored by a leading research psychologist and an experienced therapist who specializes in bereavement education and intervention this book is different the authors weave together the strands of theory research and clinical wisdom into a seamless and readable narrative while they discuss previous work they also present new data never before published from one of the largest studies of bereaved people ever conducted the bereavement coping project unlike most studies to date which focused on only one type of bereaved group usually widows or widowers the bereavement coping project examined the experiences of several different groups during the first 18 months after the death the groups included those who had lost a spouse a parent an adult sibling or a child and those who had lost their significant other to cancer or cardiovascular disease on one hand as opposed to the stigmatized disease of aids on the other the book begins with a critical overview of theories of bereavement succeeding chapters explore in depth the impact of specific types of loss the impact of particular coping strategies on recovery the impact of social supports and religion and the special cases of children and of people who seem to grow and change for the better after a loss a final chapter considers implications for intervention with bereaved people each chapter is richly illuminated with real life examples throughout and ends with a section called voices in which bereaved people describe their various attempts to cope in their own words insightful and informative aids researchers are investigating new vaccines that would prevent infection with hiv and reduce the spread of aids some have argued that product liability concerns have discouraged investment in hiv vaccine research and development the purpose of this ota background paper is to describe the current state of development of hiv vaccines and to discuss what is known about adverse reactions that may occur the background paper provides an overview of ethical issues that arise in the conduct of hiv vaccine trials the report also discusses alternatives to the current product liability system to encourage the development of hiv vaccines and to fairly compensate those who are harmed as a result of adverse reactions to the vaccine this background paper was prepared in response to a request from the subcommittee on health of the house ways and means committee it is eleventh in ota's series of studies on hiv related issues this book has reviews of hhv 6 hhv 8 new hepatitis endogenous and neurological viruses including ms and hrv 1 it describes and analyses progress in understanding persistent virus infections in humans especially hiv it provides a review of all new aspects of hiv including treatment the education sector plays a key 'external' role in preventing and reducing the stigma surrounding hiv aids it also plays an important 'internal' role in providing access to care treatment and support for teachers and education staff a group that in many countries represents more than 60 percent of the public sector workforce the education sector can also have a critically important positive effect on the future even in the worst affected countries most schoolchildren are not infected for these children there is a chance to live lives free from aids if they can be educated on the knowledge and values that can protect them as they grow up the authors of accelerating the education sector response to hiv explore the experiences of education sectors across sub saharan africa as they scale up their responses to hiv aids within the accelerate initiative working group established in 2002 by the joint united nations programme on hiv aids unaids inter agency task team on education this book demonstrates that leadership by the ministries of education and commitment from key development partners are crucial for mobilizing activities and that full participation of all stakeholders is required for effective implementation this book summarizes the experiences of technical focal points from the 37 ministries of education in sub saharan africa which are represented on the sub regional networks for hiv and education these experiences prove that the education sector response can play a crucially important role in the multisectoral national responses to this epidemic
