before speaking of the vedic deities it is necessary that something be said concerning the vedas themselves the source of our information concerning them the root of the word is vid to know hence the term veda signifies knowledge and as these books were not written for centuries after they were originally composed it signifies knowledge that was heard or orally communicated the vedas are not the work of a single person but according to popular belief were communicated to a number of rishis or saints who in their turn transmitted them to their disciples the seer vyasa is styled the arranger or as we should now say the editor of these works the instruction contained in these writings is said to have been breathed forth by god himself other writers teach that it issued from him like smoke from fire sometimes the vedas are said to have sprung from the elements the accounts of their origin though differing in form agree in teaching that they were the direct gift of god to man and hence they are regarded with the greatest veneration they are the special property of the brahmins as early as manu the nominal author or compiler of a law book probably not more than two or three centuries later than the vedas though some suppose it to have been no earlier than a d 500 it was regarded as a grave offence for a single word of these divinely given books to be heard by a man of a lower caste the vedas are four in number of these the rig veda is the oldest next in order was the yajur veda then the sama veda and last of all the atharva veda each of these vedas consists of two main parts a sanhita or collection of mantras or hymns and a brahmana containing ritualistic precept and illustration which stands in somewhat the same relation to the sanhita as the talmud to the law in these are found instructions to the priests who conduct the worship of the gods addressed in the hymns attached to each brahmana is an upanishad containing secret or mystical doctrine these are regarded as of lesser authority than the mantras and brahmanas for whilst they are spoken of as sruti i.e. heard the upanishads are smriti learned though based on the older compositions if there is any discrepancy between them the teaching of the later ones is rejected the sanhita and brahmana are for the brahmans generally the upanishads for philosophical inquirers yet strange to say whereas the older portions had until recent years been almost entirely neglected with some parts of the upanishads there was considerable acquaintance amongst the learned pundits of benares and other places in many parts of india not a man could be found able to read and interpret them of the sanhitas the rig veda sanhita containing one thousand and seventeen hymns is by far the most important whilst the atharva veda sanhita though generally held to be the most recent is perhaps the most interesting moreover these are the only two vedic hymn books worthy of being called separate original collections the others being almost entirely made up of extracts from the rig veda between the time of the composition of the rig veda and that of the atharva considerable changes in the religious faith of the people had come about the childlike trust of the earlier hymns has disappeared and the deities now seem more cruel and there is greater need of propitiatory offerings probably the old religion of the people whom they had conquered had begun to tell on that of the aryaans
