the reactive scattering for H_2 and D_2 and its isotopologues were investigated using different methods the studies aimed at providing insights into elementary reactions and go beyond these to more complex chemical reactions by comparison of the reaction probabilities of H_2 using adiabatic and non adiabatic methods it was found that at low collision energies the reaction preferentially occurs adiabatically but at higher collision energies non adiabatic effects should be taken into account for H_2 and its isotopologues we can see that at low collision energies the reaction probabilities and reaction cross section using H_2 and D_2 are very similar but different from HD the reaction cross sections investigated with quasi classical trajectories are higher than those calculated with quantum wavepackets for the collision H and D with HD the main reaction path ways are different with the different collision energies
