immediately following the second world war between 1947 and 1955 several classic papers quantified the fundamentals of human speech information processing and recognition in 1947 french and steinberg published their classic study on the articulation index in 1948 claude shannon published his famous work on the theory of information in 1950 fletcher and galt published their theory of the articulation index a theory that fletcher had worked on for 30 years which integrated his classic works on loudness and speech perception with models of speech intelligibility in 1951 george miller then wrote the first book language and communication analyzing human speech communication with claude shannon s just published theory of information finally in 1955 george miller published the first extensive analysis of phone decoding in the form of confusion matrices as a function of the speech to noise ratio this work extended the bell labs speech articulation studies with ideas from shannon s information theory both miller and fletcher showed that speech as a code is incredibly robust to mangling distortions of filtering and noise regrettably much of this early work was forgotten while the key science of information theory blossomed other than the work of george miller it was rarely applied to aural speech research the robustness of speech which is the most amazing thing about the speech code has rarely been studied it is my belief i e assumption that we can analyze speech intelligibility with the scientific method the quantitative analysis of speech intelligibility requires both science and art the scientific component requires an error analysis of spoken communication which depends critically on the use of statistics information theory and psychophysical methods the artistic component depends on knowing how to restrict the problem in such a way that progress may be made it is critical to tease out the relevant from the irrelevant and dig for the key issues this will focus us on the decoding of nonsense phonemes with no visual component which have been mangled by filtering and noise this monograph is a summary and theory of human speech recognition it builds on and integrates the work of fletcher miller and shannon the long term goal is to develop a quantitative theory for predicting the recognition of speech sounds in chapter 2 the theory is developed for maximum entropy maxent speech sounds also called nonsense speech in chapter 3 context is factored in the book is largely reflective and quantitative with a secondary goal of providing an historical context along with the many deep insights found in these early works researchers have looked into the role of individual differences in second language learning and found that differences between learners in areas such as language aptitude language learning motivation and exposure to the language influence second language learning most of this research concerned adults far fewer studies have addressed the role of individual differences in second language learning of young learners as second language learning programmes tend to start earlier than before and children are nowadays frequently exposed to a foreign language in social settings such as online games and social media studying the role of individual differences in young learners can contribute both to sla theories and to evidence based l2 education this book discusses recent findings concerning the role of individual differences in language learning in young learners the chapters in the book concern different topics linked to internal individual differences such as language aptitude motivation attitude and external individual differences such as exposure and type of instruction the relative contribution of internal and external factors to language learning and the interplay between the two types of individual
