marketing a relationship perspective is back for a second edition and continues to set a benchmark for achievement in introductory marketing courses across Europe. It is a comprehensive, broad-based and challenging basic marketing text which describes and analyzes the basic concepts and strategic role of marketing and its practical application in managerial decision making. It integrates the new relationship approach into the traditional process of developing effective marketing plans. The book's structure fits to the marketing planning process of a company. Consequently, the book looks at the marketing management process from the perspective of both relational and transactional approach, suggesting that a company should in any case pursue an integrative and situational marketing management approach. Svend Hollensen's and Marc Opresnik's holistic approach covers both principles and practices. It is drawn in equal measure from research and application and is an ideal text for students, researchers and practitioners alike. Powerpoint slides are available for all instructors who adopt this book as a course text.

A compelling takedown of prevailing myths about human behavior, updated and expanded to meet the current moment. There are three major myths of human nature: humans are divided into biological races, humans are naturally aggressive, and men and women are wholly different in behavior, desires, and wiring. Race, monogamy, and other lies they told you counters these pervasive and pernicious myths about human behavior. Agustín Fuentes tackles misconceptions about what race, aggression, and sex really mean for humans and incorporates an accessible understanding of culture, genetics, and evolution that requires us to dispose of notions of nature or nurture. Presenting scientific evidence from diverse fields including anthropology, biology, and psychology, Fuentes devises a myth-busting toolkit to dismantle persistent fallacies about the validity of biological races, the innateness of aggression and violence, and the nature of monogamy, sex, and gender. This revised and expanded edition provides up-to-date references, data, and analyses and addresses new topics including the popularity of home DNA testing kits and the lies behind incel culture, the resurgence of racist, nativist thinking, and the internet's influence in promoting bad science and a broader understanding of the diversity of sex and gender.

The field of gerontology has often been criticized for being data-rich but theory-poor. The editors of this book address this issue by stressing the importance of theory in gerontology. While the previous edition focused on multidisciplinary approaches to aging theory, this new edition provides cross-disciplinary, integrative explanations of aging theory. The contributors of this text have reached beyond traditional disciplinary boundaries to partner with researchers in adjacent fields in studying aging and age-related phenomena. This edition of the handbook consists of 39 chapters written by 67 internationally recognized experts in the field of aging. It is organized in seven sections reflecting the major theoretical developments in gerontology over the past 10 years: special features, comprehensive coverage of aging theory focusing on the biological, psychological, and social aspects of aging, a section dedicated to discussing how aging theory informs public policy, a concluding chapter summarizing the major themes of aging and offering predictions about the future of theory development. Required reading for graduate students and post doctoral fellows this textbook represents the current status of theoretical development in the study of aging
