this book undertakes a comparative study of the public interest and political speech defences in defamation law particularly from the perspective of the misuse of democratic free expression justifications specifically it argues that the law and legal approaches taken by leading courts and legislatures in the uk australia new zealand canada and the united states five common law comparators are undertheorised lack adequate criteria for determining the correct form of the defence and would benefit from a more precise understanding of democracy accountability and representation the book will be of great interest to scholars of free speech defamation and public law

the proposition that the tort of defamation protects reputation has long been axiomatic in the law the axiom's endurance is surprising it has long been observed that the law is riddled with inconsistencies and moreover the courts and the scholarly literature have rarely discussed exactly what reputation is and how judgments about reputation are made reputation and defamation develops a theory of reputation and uses it to analyse evaluate and propose a revision of the law it is the first book to present a comprehensive study of what reputation is how it functions and how it is and should be protected under the law reputation it argues is best understood in terms of the moral judgments a community makes about its members viewed in this way it becomes apparent contrary to the legal orthodoxy that defamation law did not really aim and function to protect reputation until the early nineteenth century unfortunately the modern common law has not paid sufficient attention to either the nature of reputation or the historical relationship between reputation and defamation consequently the tests for what is defamatory do not always protect reputation adequately or appropriately the shun and avoid and ridicule tests have developed so that a publication may be actionable even where it does not tend to prompt a negative moral judgment of the plaintiff these tests should be discarded the principal lowering the estimation test however is for the most part appropriately geared to the protection of reputation importantly the scope of legal protection has been limited words will only be actionable if they tend to make right thinking people think the less of the plaintiff the values of christian tradition and victorian moralism which became embedded in the concept of the right thinking person are problematic in the current era of moral diversity a revised legal framework is proposed it retains the principal test but rethinks how and why different criteria for moral judgment should or should not be recognised when courts determine whether an attack on reputation will be actionable as defamation it is argued that the right thinking person should be associated with an inclusive liberal premise of equal moral worth and a shared commitment to moral diversity the proposed framework demands that when courts recognise values at odds with that premise then such recognition must be justified on sound and expressly stated ethical grounds that demand serves to protect reputation appropriately and effectively in an age of moral diversity
