out of architecture is both a call to reassess the architecture profession and its education and a toolkit for graduates and working architects to untangle their skills passions and value from traditional architectural practice and consider alternate pathways written by design professionals and expert career consultants this book is informed by numerous client accounts as well as the authors own stories and routes out of architecture the initial chapters follow the narrative of a typical architecture training in the us highlighting the many highs and lows skills honed and ultimately the huge disconnect that can occur between architectural education and practice subsequent chapters explore a disillusionment with the profession unhealthy work cultures mentorship working with lead architects toxic perfectionism and the notion of a calling authors then present the hopeful accounts of many architects who escaped a profession known for its grueling working conditions to find fulfilling well paying creative jobs that better utilize the skills of architecture than the architectural profession itself written in a unique combination of storytelling and analysis this patchwork of client and author stories makes for an immersive provocative and enjoyable read a wide range of architecture students graduates educators and professionals will recognize themselves within the pages of this book and find prompts to reassess their working practices teaching styles and the profession itself it will be of particular value to those students skeptical of joining the architecture workforce as well as those further along and considering a career change in this book we offer an exciting new perspective on a distinctive form of megalithic monument that is found across most areas of northern europe in order to achieve this we have abandoned outmoded typological classifications and reintroduced the term dolmen to embrace a range of sites that share a common form of megalithic architecture the elevation and display of a substantial stone by critically assessing the traditionally assigned role of these monuments and their architecture as megalithic tombs the presence of the dead is reassessed and argued to form part of a process generating vibrancy to the materiality of the dolmen as such this book argues that the megalithic architecture identified as a dolmen is not a chambered tomb at all but instead is a qualitatively different form of monument we also provide an entirely different conception of the utility of this extraordinary megalithic architecture one that seeks to emphasize its building as articulating discourses of wonder as a broad social strategy in this respect it is important to remember that many of these monuments were erected very early in the neolithic and as a consequence of new people entering new lands or social transformation in short dolmens are monumental constructions employing experimental and emergent technologies to raise huge stones which once built enchant those who come within their spaces our claim is that dolmens were megalithic installations of affect magical and extraordinary in construction and strategically positioned to induce both drama and awe in their encounter the architecture of the grose bradley studio springs from the canons of western functionalism but it translates them into structures that integrate with the australian environment and interpret its historical and natural characteristics as well as its way of life
