written specifically for canadian students this practical exploration of research methods in criminology offers balanced coverage of qualitative quantitative and mixed methods preparing students to design interpret and appraise empirical research this book assembles essays by leading scholars in their fields of criminology and socio legal studies john braithwaite john hagan jack katz nicola lacey michael levi joan mccord dario melossi steven messner and richard rosenfeld explore new directions in contemporary theorising about the impact of social and cultural dynamics on crime and social control these essays have in common that they transcend disciplinary boundaries by combining criminological and socio legal perspectives in so doing they bring fresh perspectives to the analysis of crime in market societies and in the global market place the authors do not share the apocalyptic and dramatic predictions of rising crime rates but are aware of the double movement of social change and the counteracting forces that emerge in its course these essays promote an integrative perspective that bridges the gap between etiological criminology and a constructionist approach as well as between explanatory and normative theory the study of how the environment local geography and physical locations influence crime has a long history that stretches across many research traditions these include the neighborhood effects approach developed in the 1920s the criminology of place and a newer approach that attends to the perception of crime in communities aided by new technologies and improved data reporting in recent decades research in environmental criminology has developed rapidly within each of these approaches yet research in the subfield remains fragmented and competing theories are rarely examined together the oxford handbook of environmental criminology takes a unique approach and synthesizes the contributions of existing methods to better integrate the subfield as a whole gerben j n bruinsma and shane d johnson have assembled a cast of top scholars to provide an in depth source for understanding how and why physical setting can influence the emergence of crime affect the environment and impact individual or group behavior the contributors address how changes in the environment global connectivity and technology provide more criminal opportunities and new ways of committing old crimes they also explore how crimes committed in countries with distinct cultural practices like china and west africa might lead to different spatial patterns of crime this is a state of the art compendium on environmental criminology that reflects the diverse research and theory developed across the western world the oxford handbook of environmental criminology provides an in depth source for understanding how and why physical setting can influence the emergence of crime affect the environment and impact individual or group behavior bimonthly abstracts of journal articles and monographs covers material from psychiatric literature as well as from criminological sources entries arranged in classified order author subject indexes quantitative criminology handbook serves as a comprehensive guide to applying statistical and mathematical methods in understanding and addressing crime and criminal behavior we delve into various quantitative techniques used by criminologists to analyze crime patterns assess risk factors and evaluate the effectiveness of crime prevention strategies covering a wide range of topics we explore key concepts such as regression analysis correlation spatial analysis and machine learning in criminological research readers gain insights into how quantitative methods study recidivism crime hotspots offender characteristics and the impact of social and environmental factors on criminal activities we address methodological and ethical considerations discussing data collection techniques model validation interpretation of results and the importance of transparency and reproducibility in quantitative research written by experts in the field quantitative criminology handbook provides researchers practitioners policymakers and students with a valuable resource for advancing their understanding of crime analysis risk assessment crime prevention and evidence based decision making in the criminal justice system with practical insights case studies and discussions on emerging trends our handbook is essential for anyone interested in applying quantitative methods to criminological research and practice this volume offers a diverse set of perspectives on transnational crime providing a wide ranging overview of the legal and policy issues that arise in connection with various forms of transnational crime the authors outline the criminal justice responses adopted across different jurisdictions including contributions from high profile chinese and european academics and practitioners across a variety of disciplines and methodological backgrounds the authors address some of the hitherto underexplored issues related to transnational crime these range from trafficking in cultural objects derived from illicit metal detecting and metal detecting tourism in china to the european approaches to criminalising the denial of historical truth the central theme of the book is that useful lessons can be drawn from each other s experiences and that a cross fertilisation of domestic approaches to transnational crime is essential to effective cooperation this book will be of use to students and academics of comparative criminal justice and anyone interested in transnational crime global criminology and criminal justice brings together 22 articles that constitute some of the most important recent literature in the field
